

PARIS PRESS SAYS SAARBRUCKEN WILL SOON BE CAPTURED

French High Command, However, Cloaks Hostilities In Utmost Secrecy

REAL OFFENSIVE READY

Advances of French Characterized As Particularly Brilliant

By Kenneth T. Downs
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Sept. 12.—(INS)—While the Paris press predicted the early fall of Saarbrücken, important industrial city at the base of the Siegfried Line, the French high command cloaked last night's hostilities in utmost secrecy.

The calmness and brevity of a communique attempted to confirm Paris that the French, possibly aided by British troops, have cleaned up all advances possible, between the Maginot and Siegfried Lines, are now almost ready for a real offensive against the West wall.

French advances were characterized as particularly brilliant, bringing the French within striking distance of Saarbrücken. Well-informed sources justified the nature of the Franco-British campaign and said that operations "are in line with the repetition of the French general staff conceded in military circles to be the world's best."

Although hospital trains are arriving in Paris daily from the front, the casualties thus far, it was said, have been held to a "minimum."

Submarine warfare on the high seas sent the British merchant shipping losses in the current war soaring to the 100,000-ton mark today as the sinking of three more ships virtually boosted the total of England's ship loss to 15, with a gross tonnage of more than $5,000.

The newest British victim of under-sea raiders was the Firby, sunk near the Hebrides Islands, where the Athenia met its doom; the Blair Logie, torpedoed off the coast of Ireland, and the Cartagan, destroyed near the Azores.

Another neutral vessel, the Mark, a Netherlands freighter, was destroyed by a mine in the North Sea.

There were reports that a German destroyer believed to be the Oeresund, was blown up in the Baltic Sea. Whether the German vessel struck a mine or was destroyed by an accidental explosion of mines with which she was loaded was not made clear in the terse report of a Swedish boat in the vicinity. The master and the entire crew of 31 of the Blair Logie were rescued by the American skipper of the U. S. Lines. The report of the rescue was relayed by Captain R. J. Sullivan, of the rescue vessel, gave the first word of the tragedy.

The master of the British ship, according to Sullivan's report, revealed that the submarine first warned the crew of the Blair Logie and then apparently extended time to desert the ship before she was sent to the bottom.

With Warsaw holding fast against the pounding of three German armies, with French gains consolidated east of the Saar River, and with crack British troops making their presence felt on the western front, Europe's war today neared a new phase.

French troops, smashing through the rolling palatinate in what the official communique called a "serious" or "extremely" important advance, now are understood to have reached the actual casemates of the German westwall.

The sole German counter-offensive, immediately below Luxembourg, was halted dead, according to French accounts, which were ignored in Germany.

For the first nine days of the war French movements were conducted as probes. But now the actual German lines have been reached and German reinforcements have been brought into position.

In Britain an irate nation, scornful to deal with a nation headed by Adolf Hitler, grew impatient. Since Britain was in the war, since its war cabinet had announced plans for a three-to-ten years' struggle, the British public began saying: "Let's get on with it!"

Military authorities agree that France's tactics thus far have been wise; that the French must of necessity test the German lines before trying with artillery, tanks, and infantry the initial grand push of the war.

France's authoritative press predicts a major offensive shortly; the British public calls for it, and the fact that Germany's armies apparently have been halted in Poland seems to make it expedient.

In Poland the first pitched battle of the war was being fought, with some 50,000 to 75,000 Polish troops reported

First Wedding Performed In Tullytown Chapel

TULLYTOWN, Sept. 12.—The Sacred Heart Chapel was the scene of the first wedding to be performed there, Sunday at three p. m., when Miss Lillian Liberatore became the bride of Ernest Pezza, New York City. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Peter Pinci, St. Ann's Church, Bristol. Miss Frances Tamburella played the wedding march, and during the service Miss Mary Collela sang "Ave Maria."

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Liberatore, was gowned in white broadcloth and wore a coronet of white satin and pearls with a long veil. The dress was made with a tight bodice, and long train. She wore white sandals and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Magro, maid of honor, was gowned in a dress of ash of rose satin made like the bride's with a short veil and coronet to match her gown. Miss Magro wore sandals of silver and carried Talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Pezza, niece of the groom, and Miss Christine Piroli. Their gowns were fashioned like the bride's in a shade of aquamarine, with accessories to match. They carried yellow tea roses. Miss Gladys Liberatore, niece of the bride, flower girl, wore a colonial costume of pink silk, trimmed with aqua, made with a hoop skirt. She wore a poke bonnet, and carried pink roses.

The groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pezza, New York City, was attended by his brother, Anthony Pezza, and his ushers were Salvatore Manzi, New York, and Peter Milanese, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Pezza's traveling costume was of black and white. After a trip through New England States, the couple will be at home in their newly furnished apartment in New York City. The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold locket, and those of the groom to his best man and ushers were gold key chains and rings.

A reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Pezza in Sons of Italy Hall, Bristol.

In the Dyeing Business

(B "The Stroller")
The French-Wolf Paint Company, formerly located in Bristol, is in the dyeing business now—without any prearranged plans.

A few days ago a little bird flew into their new plant in Philadelphia. The feathered one appeared to be partially crippled, and unable to fly well.

After fluttering about, it fell into the funnel of the agitator in a large paint pot, and down it went into the paint—coming out lifeless but a brilliant blue.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The Langhorne Spring Water Company has started the work of laying a six-inch main on Richardson Ave., east of Bellevue avenue, Langhorne, to replace the much smaller pipe heretofore serving the patrons in that area. At the same time a fire plug will be installed half way between Bellevue avenue and Pine street, on Richardson avenue, having been authorized by Borough Council. This will add materially to the protection from fire in this section of the town.

The water company has completed the construction of a 150,000-gallon reinforced concrete storage reservoir. This has been done as a precautionary measure, and will enable the company to have in reserve a large volume of water in case of drought or fire. It will therefore insure greater safety and comfort to its many patrons.

The schools of Riegelsville reopened Tuesday morning with 161 pupils enrolled the first day as follows: First and second grades, 25; third and fourth, 24; fifth and sixth, 29, and seventh and eighth, 23.

Postmaster George W. Burgner, of Morrisville, urges that all rural residents co-operate with the Post Office Department in conjunction with its "Rural Mail Box Improvement Week," beginning Monday.

It is the desire of the Post Office Department to encourage patrons of the rural delivery service to provide entirely suitable mail receptacles and to erect them in such a manner that they will be accessible to the carrier and present a neat appearance. Names of box holders should be inscribed on the side of the box visible to the carrier as he approaches. The department urges that box and post be painted white and the name of the owner of each box be inscribed upon it in neat black letters one inch in height. Patrons who have boxes that have been in service for several years are not required to discard them, if kept in good condition. However, any boxes which are not of approved type and are not in condition to protect mail from the elements should be replaced with boxes of approved type.

Postmaster Burgner announces that information has been sent to the rural box holders about the "Improvement Week" and their co-operation is asked, so that better service may be given and a neater appearance made evident at the rural residences.

Chief of Police James P. Welsh of Doylestown announces that the fourth session of the Bucks County Police Academy will open Thursday evening, September 14, when two evenings a week will be devoted to police work until October 31.

The classes, which will be held in the men's jury room in the Court House at Doylestown, will be open to members of the American Legion, fire police and all other police officers.

The sessions will begin at 8 o'clock and be held on Tuesday and Thursday

TWO FIRE COMPANIES REPORT SUIT THREAT

Cornwells No. 1 and Croydon Volunteer Companies Ask Association for Advice

TO FIGHT ANY SUIT

PLUMSTEADVILLE, Sept. 12.—Two fire companies in lower Bucks County, Cornwells No. 1 and Croydon Fire Company, are reported to have been threatened with a damage suit because some tomatoes were destroyed while the firemen were engaged in fighting a major barn fire which was adjacent to the patch.

Chief Harold Dettmer of Cornwells Fire Company, No. 1, electrified about 200 firemen, when he reported that his company and Croydon Fire Company have been threatened with a damage suit because some tomatoes were destroyed while they were engaged in fighting a major barn blaze which was adjacent to the patch.

Chief Dettmer, who pointed out that a number of the tomatoes were damaged because of the close proximity to the roaring flames, said the "claim" involves the sum of $68. The tomato patch is located on State Road in Bensalem township and the owner of the tomatoes alleges that about an acre of tomatoes was ruined, but that he will settle for one-third of the tract.

Sensing the seriousness of the alleged claim, President James E. Groome appointed Assistant District Attorney Willard S. Curtin, of Morrisville, who was in attendance, to serve as counsel in an advisory capacity for the firemen's organization.

Thoroughly aroused as to what a fireman may and may not do at the scene of a fire, Chief Dettmer rebuffed the firemen with a major query until President Groome appointed Assistant District Attorney Curtin to submit legal information concerning the possibilities of firemen being sued while carrying out their duties fighting a fire.

Standing shoulder to shoulder and pledging to fight until the last ditch, the firemen are determined not to pay any damage claims, but will fight the suit in court if necessary. Chief

STATE DIRECTORS OF W. C. T. U. VISIT COUNTY

Mrs. Pettit and Mrs. Alvin Sherbine Speak at Fallington Convention

IS LARGELY ATTENDED

The 55th annual convention of the Bucks County Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in the historic Friends' Meeting House, Fallsington, Saturday, with Mrs. Elsie L. Nixon, Newtown, presiding, and using the gavel made from a piece of timber taken out of the old church at Hillsboro, O., where Frances Willard regularly attended with her father and mother when a young child.

The devotional service in charge of Miss Emily L. Packer, Newtown, religious director, was fraught with gems of truth in the building of christian character. "From the churches of our nation comes the call to prayer, intercessory, praying for others. A suggestion, from David Lawrence, that we consider the use of moral force as the world confronts the mobilization of physical force is timely. 'What would happen,' asks Mr. Lawrence, 'if our people, recognizing our own sinning, would nevertheless pause at noon each day to pray, honestly pray for the peoples who suffer tyranny; pray even for the tyrant, but not that he would tolerate his tyranny, but that He would save him from his sins? Then, in the act of prayer, we should call upon God to forgive us because, when we had the power and the privilege of co-operating with growing democracies, we put down upon these youthful democracies burdens grievous to be borne. If in that prayer we could dedicate ourselves to the reordering of this world upon a just basis, what might happen? No one can tell but this is the time, Paul himself called upon us to make love a real thing.'

Mrs. Hannah B. Hartman, president of Fallsington Union, made a gracious address of welcome, and Mrs. Helen L. Craven, Richboro, responded. Mrs. Search, the corresponding secretary, read the minutes, having arranged the details under appropriate quotations from the writings of Frances Willard. Delegates to the convention welcomed

Doylestown Fair Opens Its Gates To Children

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12.—With emphasis on youth the seventeenth annual Doylestown Fair opened its gates this morning for five days and nights. Today is "Children's Day" with all Bucks county school children enjoying an afternoon and evening at the fair as guests of the fair officers.

Distinctly a county fair in every sense of the word, with one of the largest displays of farm machinery in the United States, a good portion of the space is turned over this year to 4-H Club competition in various departments. There is a junior flower show in addition to junior competition in practically every department.

"Get the younger people interested in the fair and it will continue to be a success," Dr. H. W. Turner, president of the fair, said today when the gates opened.

"Tomorrow will be 'Doylestown Day' with all local business places closed for a half day holiday. Wednesday night will be Rotary-Kiwanis night with service clubs meeting at dinner in the Friendship Thimble Social Building on the fair grounds.

Harness racing will get under way tomorrow afternoon with the two-year-old trot and pace and the 24-18 handicap trot with purses valued at $800. The fair will continue five days and nights with harness racing every day but today.

Tonight the first performance of "Fantasies of 1939," a Broadway revue, will be presented in front of the grandstand at the night fair. This feature will be presented nightly.

PLEADS GUILTY TO STEALING COPPER FROM SAND CO.

Sentence on Two Bristol Men Deferred Until Thursday By Judge

OTHER COURT CASES

Drunken Drivers Also Enter Pleas of Guilty Before County Court

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12.—Pleading guilty to stealing 700 pounds of copper cable belonging to the Warner Company, Penn's Manor, Anthony Muccio, 25, 307 Lincoln avenue, and Carmie Whyne, 41, Bath road, both of Bristol, were before the Bucks County criminal court yesterday.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer heard their testimony and deferred sentence until Thursday because a detainer from a New Jersey reformatory that was lodged against Muccio, is to be examined in the meantime.

Both defendants are married. The stolen cable is valued at $135. Muccio, the father of two small children has been married four years. He served three months for the theft of an automobile in 1932 and also served time in a New Jersey reformatory in 1933. In 1933 he was also arrested for not having an operator's license.

Whyne is the father of an 11-year-old child. He was employed as a WPA worker near Yardley when he committed the crime. His criminal record began in 1914. He served a year in the Bucks County Prison in 1922 on a burglary charge. He was also charged with an automobile theft in 1920.

Judge Boyer yesterday sentenced Francisco Berotti, 54, Bristol township, to 30 days to two years in the Bucks County Prison. He pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while drunk. Berotti was arrested in Bristol on Memorial Day this year, by Chief of Police Linford

INCLUDE THE U. S. OUT!

When the European propaganda mills are tilted in this direction, seeking to involve the United States in its latest slaughter, Americans owe it to themselves to get d—mad and to engage in some of the uncouth, ungrammatical language Europeans are prone to attach to the lips of the Homo Americano.

Europeans should be told that when it comes to winning any more wars for them, to include us out!

If the United States again permits itself to be drawn into the gory European mess, the billions of dollars our late allies and enemies have stuck us for will have been lost in vain. For years it has been said that it was a good thing they didn't pay, because it would keep us out of their next war.

But if welching on the debts by these European nations doesn't keep us out, losing the money was a bad thing, and the American people are indeed the dumbest in the world.

There has been much prattle from certain European quarters—which stuck this nation for billions —about the solidarity of the democratic nations, etc.

Well, this is not a democratic nation. "This is a republic."

Of course, nobody in the U. S. except a few perverts would be sorry
if the murderous devilry of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin now ended in the trio becoming buzzard bait, but this, too, is a matter for Europe to arrange without assistance—financial or otherwise—from the United States.

If the so-called democracies of Europe are worth a hoot they will take care of this problem. If any of this walking carrion that terms itself Der Stalin, II Hitler and Comrade Duce ever starts in this direction, we'll feed them to the buzzards.

But until then, democracies, include the U. S. out!

In fact, don't even ask the U. S.
to join you unless you bring checks totalling some $12,000,000,000.
We'll take the checks, if they're certified, but our determination to have no more of your European wars will be as unshaken as ever.

HISTORY REPEATS

When the great conflagration of 1914 began, two brilliant Australian tennis players, Norman Brookes and Anthony Wilding, were battling an American team for the Davis Cup.
Brookes and Wilding went through to victory, took the cup to Australia —and then both went to war. Tony Wilding did not come back.

Several days ago, at Haverford, Pa., two other Australian players—Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich—battled for the Davis Cup. Bobby Riggs, outstanding star of the American team, already had beaten Bromwich, and Frankie Parker, America's No. 2 man, had defeated Quist.
Australia's best player. There didn't seem to be a chance for a comeback.

But a comeback there was. Quist fought his way through to a hairline victory over the brilliant Riggs; and Bromwich set down Parker with amazing ease.

So, after 25 years, the Davis Cup goes back to Australia. It goes there, as it went in 1914, under skies shrouded by the black clouds of war.
Quist and Bromwich, no doubt, like Wilding and Brookes, will go to war.

This time, we hope, both men will come back.

streets of the capital, the infantry and mechanized divisions of the Germans are understood to be trying to surround the city with a swinging movement from the southwest. But, the Poles point out, this would form a perilous German salient on the east, which might easily be severed.

Germany's submarine warfare was marked with further success as Britain's counter-measures slowly got under way.

Three more British freighters were sent to the bottom yesterday. Fifteen British, four German, one French and three neutral ships have been sunk since the beginning of what the British alleged was another campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare.

As the scope of warfare expanded in Europe, differences arose in the United States regarding the best way to keep America at peace.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho (R), ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, rallied
"isolationist" legislators for a "no compromise" fight against revision of the neutrality act at the special session of Congress which President Roosevelt is expected to call soon.

Whatever Congress may do, speculators were confident that certain
"war" industries in the United States will benefit by increased orders, and steel, chemical, and aircraft stocks, in a 4,678,640-share day went upward from a 2 to 1½ points.

Fighting on the Saar front, in what now is being called the "Battle of the Saar River," is on the largest scale witnessed in the current war.

French artillery is pounding relentlessly at the redoubts of the German Limes line in the Palatinate, and is getting the same punishment from the German side.

No longer is the French push confined to "local advances," or probing efforts, but, as Communiqué No. 16 said, major or "serious" advances were made on a front of about 12 miles east of the Saar River.

British troops have been seen moving up to the Limes, and their number is known to be large, although the size of the forces and their location cannot, of course, be mentioned.

Presence of the British troops, it was said in France, emphasized Franco-British unity, and gives final rejection to German peace overtures so long as German troops remain in Poland.

Reach Quota in Drive
For Ambulance Funds

The $1800 was raised since August 6th when a meeting was held and an organization known as "Sponsors of the Bucks County Rescue Squad, Croydon Unit No. 1," was formed.

The balance due on the ambulance will be paid and this means that the only public ambulance in this area will not be repossessed as was threatened.

Accompanying a donation of $100
from the Distillery Workers' Union, Local No. 21264, of Bristol, was the following letter:
James Robinson, Treasurer,
Bucks County Rescue Squad Fund, Croydon, Penna.
Dear Sir:

Enclosed is a check in the amount of one hundred dollars as our contribution toward your most worthy cause.
We regret that at this time the amount is not more substantial; but we wish to extend with the enclosed amount our complete moral support and the assurance of any further co-operation in this or any other future drive that will be conducive toward the furtherance of this most beneficial of all enterprises ever to be conducted in this vicinity.

We hope that you will be able to reach the amount you desire to raise.

Co-operatively yours,
JOSEPH CAPRIOTTI,
Secretary.

The Great Game of Politics

enhanced by the outbreak of war, that in a time of crisis the President's foreign policy is entitled to support, the apprehensions that Congress will behave in a way to notify the warring nations that there is no such thing as national unity here seem unjustified and absurd. Two reasons were advanced for failure of Mr. Roosevelt to get through his neutrality program last time. One was that besides lifting the embargo, he sought more personal power than seemed to many justified or necessary. The other was because at the time he made his demand a campaign for a third term was being waged in his interests and with his approval, which many members of his own, and all members of the other party in Congress found highly offensive. Certainly, it was not conducive to nonpartisan co-operation.

WHEN, at the call of the President, Congress meets again, the actual outbreak of war and the feeling of the people, plus Mr.
Roosevelt's own non-partisan gesture, unquestionably will mean a change of atmosphere. Even among those who most deeply distrust Mr. Roosevelt's judgment and most strongly feel the country, in war as well as in peace time, would be safer in other hands, the disposition and the desire will be to support him in the handling of foreign affairs, particularly in the neutrality matter.
They will acquiesce in the unalterable fact that Mr. Roosevelt will be our President for the next fifteen months and support him on every proposal where an appearance of national unity is needed.

HOWEVER, Mr. Roosevelt would make this support easier and surer if he would supplement his own public non-political exhortations by suppressing the purely political activities of his friends.
But to have his appeals to others to rise above petty politics coincide with the obvious efforts of men known to be in close touch with him to utilize the crisis as an aid toward keeping him and themselves in power, is well calculated to create both resentment and resistance. For example, almost simultaneously with the President's canceling of his engagement to address the Democratic women, on the ground that this was no time for a political address, one of his most ardent journalistic advocates, with close White House relations, burst out with a printed announcement that "the war has created a political revolution in the United States and a third term for Roosevelt is now certain."

THAT kind of stuff promotes neither good will among Democrats nor the co-operative spirit among Republicans. Certainly, it does not make for national unity.
It is suggested that, in addition to preserving a nonpartisan attitude himself and appealing to his opponents to abandon politics, the President use his influence to discourage his friends from the peculiarly offensive political activities in which they are indulging.
He can serve both himself and the country better in that way than by vague expansion of the White House staff and second-hand announcements that the "Brain Trust" is "out the window"—an announcement at which the Messrs.
Corcoran, Cohen & Co. snicker so heartily as to justify the suspicion that the suggestion originated with them and is essentially phony.

Bustle snood

Postillion

Fisherwoman's hat

Black felt, perennial fashion favorite, once again occupies the spotlight in the autumn millinery parade. Particularly effective among the autumn styles are the pert little pillboxes with a snood reminiscent of other days. Typical is the model illustrated. In addition to its bustle snood for back interest to go with the new dresses, this one is topped off with graceful felt wings for added height. The black felt fisherwoman's hat has a rolled cuff brim which may be worn either as shown or snapped down in front. Henna grosgrain is used for the band and side bows. The postillion, untrimmings for sportswear and bedecked with soft ribbons for dressier occasions, ranks among the tops in fall headgear. It is done in black felt and trimmed with a wide band of red velvet.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The frantic but futile efforts of a behind-the-counter girl to deny the parenthood of a founding accidentally wished on her form the basis of the Ginger Rogers-David Niven comedy hit "Bachelor Mother" at the Grand Theatre.

Discovering the infant on the steps of an orphanage, Ginger is unable to convince the authorities, as well as her own employers, that the baby isn't hers. Her handsome boss, in fact, threatens to dismiss her unless she assumes the responsibility of rearing the child properly.

Ludicrous complications develop when her employer's father, owner of the department store, grows convinced that the child is his grandson, and tries to persuade his son to marry the girl. This hectic situation produces a gay entertainment as the various characters try to untangle the entanglements of the whole affair.

RITZ THEATRE

Poignant human interest, comedy and details of the exciting life in a Mexican border town mingle in the first appearance on the screen together of Wallace Beery, hero of "The Big House," and Jackie Cooper, famous for "Skippy."

The pair are teamed in "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama, coming today to the Ritz Theatre.

Beery plays an old prize fighter, living with his small son in a border town where he is everlastingly trying to make a "comeback." There is a sensational prize fight, thrills of racing at Caliente, and through it runs the stirring story of a father's love and his sacrifice to give the child the "break" he never could have.

BRISTOL THEATRE

There are "Clouds Over Europe" and there is a man with an umbrella. . . . And the combination, as demonstrated on the Bristol Theatre screen, makes for one of the most enjoyable spy dramas in recent months. Columbia's "Clouds Over Europe" is a thrill-packed, laugh-filled story of Scotland Yard, of planes mysteriously disappearing while in sight, of a daring test pilot who risks his life to learn the answer to questions which baffle a nation.

Laurence Olivier, sensational star of "Wuthering Heights" and "Fire Over England," appears to brilliant advantage as the test pilot.
